

(52) Copyright, Licensing & Distribution Protocols

1. Intellectual Property & Integrity Statement

The integrity of this framework relies on precise standardization. To ensure that "TCORF" framework as a standardized audit reference framework, the content must remain consistent, immutable, and uniform across all deployments.

Therefore, specific restrictions are applied to prevent "forking," mistranslation, or decontextualization.

2. Core Integrity Rules (Prohibited Actions)

Unless the User has obtained explicit, prior written authorization from the Producer, the following actions are strictly prohibited for all parties:

- Modification of Content: Altering, editing, or changing any portion of the text, structure, or numbering.
- Permitted Contextual Citation: Quoting limited excerpts for review, critique, education, or evidence is allowed if the excerpt is accompanied by the Right ID/title and a clear reference to the canonical English documentation as the sole authoritative source. Misleading use or presentation of excerpts as standalone "official guidance" remains prohibited.
- Commercial Exploitation: Selling, reselling, or bundling the content for profit. This includes, but is not limited to: inclusion in paid books, paid courses, or websites (access- restricted).
- Unauthorized Translation: Creating or distributing translations. Reasoning: To ensure "Semantic Integrity." Unofficial translations may introduce errors that compromise standardized definitions. Official translations are planned.

Temporary Translation Pathway (Private Comprehension Only — No Storage — No Distribution — No Warranty)

To enable global comprehension without enabling translation forks, the Producer permits a strictly temporary translation pathway under the following conditions:

A) Ephemeral On-the-Fly Translation (Allowed)

A User may perform on-the-fly translation strictly for private comprehension at their own risk, provided that:

- No translated output is stored, archived, exported, copied into files, or saved as a derivative work (including translated PDFs, transcripts, subtitles, repositories, or text archives).
- No translated version is published, distributed, shared, resold, or circulated in any form.
- The canonical English documentation remains the sole authoritative reference for citation, filings, audits, or claims.

B) AI-Assisted Comprehension (Allowed — Canonical English Input Only)

Users may use AI tools to understand the framework in any language, provided that:

- The User supplies only the original English documentation as input.
- The AI is used as a comprehension layer (Q&A), not as a translation output generator for redistribution.
- The User must not intentionally create, store, or distribute translated derivative versions of the framework text.
- Any formal reference must cite the original English wording only.

No Legal Binding / No Warranty / No Liability (Translation Pathway)

This translation pathway is provided "as-is" for private comprehension only, creates no official translation, forms no contract, and provides no warranty of correctness. The User assumes full responsibility for all interpretation, reliance, and downstream use. To the maximum extent permitted by law, the Producer disclaims liability for errors, misuse, or consequences arising from any translation or AI-assisted interpretation.

3. Digital Media & Performance Rights (The "Streaming" Protocol)

The Producer treats the textual content of this framework as a protected work, analogous to musical compositions or dramatic scripts.

Commentary (Allowed)

Content creators may discuss, review, or analyze the framework in monetized media (e.g., YouTube, TikTok, Podcasts) provided the content adds original commentary or educational value.

Language-Neutral Educational Content (Allowed) — Unofficial Translation Reactions (Prohibited)

Educational "how-to" content may be created in any language if it adds original commentary and does not distribute translated framework text.

Reaction videos, subtitle tracks, narrated readings, or "explainer" media that are based on unofficial translations (including machine translations) are prohibited, as they constitute an unauthorized derivative translation/performance of the work.

Performance & Adaptation (Restricted)

The public "performance" of the text—defined as reading significant portions (>10%) of the document verbatim for commercial broadcast, monetized streaming, or audiobook production—is a Reserved Right.

Impact: Creators cannot simply read the PDF to generate ad revenue (AdSense/Sponsorships) without a license. Such use is subject to copyright strikes or revenue claiming by the Producer.

4. Licensing Tiers & Permitted Use

Tier A: Individual Owner & Evangelist License (Free Distribution)

Authorized Users: Individual Owners, independent content creators, and non-profit advocates acting in a private capacity.

Permitted Actions: Users may freely share, copy, and distribute the documentation set in its entirety.

Reputation Clause: This license is automatically revoked if the content is used in a manner that misrepresents the Producer's intent, promotes violence/extremism, or is utilized for propaganda.

Tier B: Institutional & Enterprise License (Commercial/Organizational)

Authorized Users: Organizations (States, Municipalities, Corporations, Associations) and their Personnel.

Restriction: Without an active, paid Commercial Agreement, Institutional Users are prohibited from:

- Deploying the framework for internal operations.
- Officially referencing the documentation in organizational communications.
- Distributing the documentation within the organization.

Admission Protocol (Strict Formation Sequence): Commercial Licenses are granted exclusively via a strict application process. The Organization must first apply for admission. A license is formed only if the Producer explicitly Accepts the application by issuing a formal Invoice. If no Invoice is issued, no contract exists.

Donation Exclusion: Voluntary contributions (Donations) made via third-party platforms are legally classified as Gratuitous Gifts. They do not constitute Commercial License fees. An Organization cannot acquire a license, rights of usage, or legal standing via donation.

Definition of Good Standing: A Commercial License is valid only if the Organization holds a formally accepted subscription, the current year's fees are fully settled (cleared funds), and no arrears exist from previous periods.

Tier C: Technology & Vendor License (Commercial Implementation)

Authorized Users: Software Developers, ERP Vendors, System Integrators, and Audit Firms.

Scope of License: This license is required for any entity creating, marketing, or selling:

1. Software Solutions: Digital platforms that automate the workflows, SLAs, or logical structures defined in the Framework (e.g., "Request Management Systems").
2. Compliance Audits: Professional services offering to rate or certify an Organization against the Framework's standards.

Tier B0: Institutional Evaluation (View-Only — No Storage — No Distribution)

Authorized Users: Organizations (States, Municipalities, Corporations, Associations) and their Personnel evaluating the framework.

Permitted Actions:

- View-only access to the unmodified documentation directly from the official public source for evaluation.

Prohibited Actions (Tier B0):

- Any download, internal archiving/storage, mirroring, reposting, printing, or redistribution (even internally).
- Any translation, excerpt compilation, or derivative representation.
- Any operational use, internal deployment, official reference, policy integration, or implementation.

Anti-Propaganda Clause:

Any use of the framework, name, or excerpts for propaganda, disinformation, ideological mobilization, reputation attacks, or hostile influence operations is strictly prohibited and constitutes automatic revocation of permissions.

IP Fee Trigger on Breach (Non-Subscription Licensing Remedy):

Any prohibited action under Tier B0 constitutes unauthorized institutional use. Upon breach, the Producer may issue a retroactive IP license invoice as a licensing remedy. This fee is not a subscription and does not form a Commercial License unless explicitly accepted by the Producer under the Admission Protocol.

The minimum fee equals one (1) annual Tier B Commercial License Fee. A variable scale component may apply, determined solely by the Producer based on the estimated scale of exposure and affected Users/Owners (e.g., citizen/end-user population). The Producer is not required to publish pricing formulas or fee schedules. Any applicable fee is communicated exclusively via invoice.

Owner Population Factor (Definition Only): the number of Owners/citizens (or equivalent end-user population) in millions, rounded up to the next full million.

Monetization Model: Usage of the Framework's logic, nomenclature, and specific metric structures (e.g., SPU calculations, SLA tiers) for commercial product development requires a Commercial Vendor Agreement. Unauthorized commercial implementation constitutes intellectual property theft.

5. Operational Note

These licensing protocols apply in addition to the provisions established in the "Terms of Use" (Document 51 [REF:D51]). Users must also review the "Disclaimer" (Document 53 [REF:D53]) regarding operational risk assessments before deployment.
